“The Tourism Private Sector Grant Program was created to ensure Illinois continues to be the best place to live, work and do businesses,” said DCEO Director Kristin Richards. “This grant funding is critical to supporting events, festivals and attractions across the state to increase tourism, boosting our local economies and workforce.”

This funding was made available through a Notice of Funding Opportunity (NOFO). Eligible applicants included non-profits, government entities, for-profit institutions, and local promotional groups and as defined in state statute, matching funds must be provided by private sector entities, which is the origin of the program's name.

The State of Illinois continues to prioritize its tourism industry as millions of visitors spend billions of dollars annually across Illinois, boosting economic development and supporting jobs in the industry. Illinois reached its highest-ever hotel tax revenue figures in FY23 with $308 million - surpassing the pre-pandemic record in FY19. Additionally, Illinois welcomed 111 million visitors who spent $44 billion in 2022 - representing 14 million additional travelers spending $12 billion more than calendar year 2021.

“Illinois’ world-renowned attractions, events and festivals are getting a much-deserved boost from the Tourism Private Sector Grant Program,” said Rep. Janet Yang-Rohr (D-Naperville). “Through this grant funding program, the State of Illinois is promoting some of our greatest assets throughout the state to visitors from near and far.”

“The Tourism Private Sector Grant Program is essential to supporting the state's continued effort to attract visitors,” said Sen. Sara Feigenholtz (D-Chicago). "Illinois has a rich history and so many great experiences to offer and this funding will build on our current momentum, while simultaneously boosting our local economies.”

“This additional funding plays a critical role in our continued effort to boost tourism across Illinois,” said Sen. Chris Belt (D-Swansea). “The Tourism Private Sector Grant Program will help showcase our great state while providing economic opportunities for our local workforce and small businesses.”

The success of Illinois' tourism sector is due to commitment to supporting the industry as well as the Illinois Office of Tourism's award-winning "Middle of Everything" campaign. Since it launched in 2022, the campaign has contributed to an additional 2 million trips equaling an additional $1 billion spent in Illinois hotels, restaurants, small businesses, and attractions, according to data from Longwoods International. Additionally, every $1 spent on the campaign equated to $91 in visitor spending while generating $10 in state and local tax revenue for every dollar spent - an enormous return on investment.
