Abstract

Denis Healy, Veterans Remember, VRK-A-L-2007-020

Biographical Information & Synopsis: Denis Healy was born May 2nd, 1933 and grew up in the Bronx, New York in an Irish ethnic neighborhood, attending Catholic schools then enrolled in the City College of New York in 1950, where he also signed up for Army ROTC.

He spent two years in college before he was drafted into the Army, and following basic training, was stationed to South Korea in January of 1954, just months after the armistice was signed. He was soon assigned to the 55th Military Police Company, where he served for a short time guarding a fuel pipeline from Inchon to Kimpo, Air Force Base, before being transferred to the 728th Military Police Battalion. Mr. Healy discusses his views of post-war Korea and the Korean people. Following his service in Korea, Mr. Healy returned to the states, finding work with Colgate Palmolive, then Mennan as a chemist and product developer.

Topics Covered: U.S. Army during Korean War; 55th Military Police Company; 728th Military Police Battalion; Military Police duty in South Korea in mid 1950s; Yong Dung Po, South Korea; Seoul, Korea; Kimpo Air Force Base

Note to the Reader: Readers of the oral history memoir should bear in mind that this is a transcript of the spoken word, and that the interviewer, interviewee and editor sought to preserve the informal, conversational style that is inherent in such historical sources. The Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library is not responsible for the factual accuracy of the memoir, nor for the views expressed therein. We leave these for the reader to judge.
