Abstract

Biographical Information Overview of Interview: Taylor Bell born in Blue Island, Illinois on September 2, 1940, and grew up there, graduating from Blue Island Community High School in 1958. Taylor graduated from the University of Illinois in 1962, majoring in English. While at the University of Illinois he worked at the Daily Illini, covering sporting events. After graduation, Taylor spent four years at the Champaign-Urbana Gazette (1962-66), two years at the St. Louis Globe Democrat (1966-68), ten years at the Chicago Daily News (1968-78), and twenty-three years at the Chicago Sun Times (1978-2001). Taylor became a prominent sports writer and editor covering the high school scene. Along the way, Taylor found time to author four books on Illinois sports, Sweet Charlie, Dike, Cazzie and Bobby Joe (2004), Dusty, Deek and Mr. Do-Right (2011), Football’s Second Season (2007) co-authored with Tom Lemming, and Glory Days in Illinois (2006). These books explored the history of Illinois High School basketball and football as well as the art of scouting high school football games. Taylor has received numerous awards for his writing and investigative reporting, including the Illinois Basketball Coaches Hall of Fame, the Buzzy O’Conner Award, Chicago Journalism Hall of Fame, Chicagoland Sports Hall of Fame, Ring Lardner Award for Excellence, Illinois Authors Award, AP and UPI investigative awards, UPI Illinois Sports Writer of the Year, Notre Dame Club of Chicago’s Warren Brown/Arch Ward award for sports journalism excellence, the Red Smith award for excellence, the Jacob Scher Award and the National Federation of Interscholastic Coaches Association’s distinguished service award.

This interview covers Bell’s entire forty year career as a sports journalist and editor. He includes stories and insights on many of the coaches, players and schools he’s reported on. Bell also discusses the role of an investigative reporter, publishing requirements and the competition between high school reporting and reporting for college and professional sports. Taylor highlights the earlier history of Illinois football and basketball while discussing his several books. He also discussed competition between public and private schools, the private school multiplier, football playoffs, Chicago Public School participation and a multitude of other topics.
