Happy New Year, CMS. I wish each of you the happiest and healthiest 2020 imaginable! January is such an exciting time in our lives as we shake the dust from the passing year and begin to unwrap this fresh, new year of unrealized dreams and ambitions. And, while all of that can mean something entirely different for each one of us individually, here at CMS, we are looking at a fresh push while building on the gains we have made in our first full year administering CMS under the marvelous leadership of Governor JB Pritzker.

As we think about what comes next at CMS and in our work lives, I am proud to say that we have been able to report some significant strides in how we operate and the results we are achieving as we seek continuous improvement in our administrative operations and service delivery to those who depend on us. Here are just a few of our 2019 CMS achievements, which we outlined in our holiday card to the Governor and his staff:

2019 – CMS Key Accomplishments at a Glance
1. Improved State Employee Health Care Offerings; more than $500M Cost Savings through 2023.
2. Expanded Rapid Results Support for Continuous Improvement; recovery of $20.5M per year.
3. Reworked CMS Hiring Process to improve candidate skills and cut hiring time to 45 days or fewer.
4. Finalized 29 State Collective Bargaining Agreements, with just 4 still to go; 1st time since 2015.
5. Strategic Sourcing activities aligned with Business Enterprise Program (BEP) in CMS to enable and improve equity and diversity in procurements.
6. Capacity Building at CMS through organizational alignment, improved teamwork, and training.

Together, we have reviewed numerous key processes and operational functions, and we have added value even as we have trimmed waste. Together, we are recapturing tens of millions of dollars each year through eliminated waste, and we are recapturing valuable staff time, to the tune of 400 or more person-hours of time each year within the 35 agencies we have served under our Rapid Results initiative for continuous improvement. That recaptured time is only meaningful if we are managing operations properly and directing those saved hours to other job needs, but so far, so good. In CMS and other executive agencies, managers, and staff understand the long-term importance of utilizing the time we have available in the most meaningful and productive ways we can.

Those efforts, together with our unfolding plan to set more viable, long-range strategies in place for CMS and all other agencies, are helping us focus past the day-to-day glitches that come up, and manage to the longer term where improved preparation can blend with opportunities along the way to help us identify and overcome those daily barriers in the most efficient ways possible.

The CMS leadership team is excited to have outlined a comprehensive strategy for our agency in 2019, a multi-year plan that will guide actions through 2023 and is already being implemented and adapted systematically within every bureau, program or key process functions. That means the overall CMS strategy is being translated to individual staff actions for success at every level of the organization. You will see the whole plan as it is refined and finalized in the weeks ahead. In the meantime, here are highlights of our CMS goals for the year ahead, as we recently shared them with the Governor and staff:

As you can see, our key goals for 2020 build directly on our administrative successes from 2019 in areas of Personnel Reform, improved Customer Value and the Elimination of Waste in key processes and services through Rapid Results, improved and modernized Data Analytics Practices to help us track our activities and progress more effectively, all amid our improved attention to Professional Development and Service Delivery throughout the agency.

CMS also is proud to have been asked by the Governor’s office to establish a Strategic Planning and follow as needed. This will help all agencies gain alignment in the various approaches to long-term strategic planning and translate those considered objectives into meaningful and coordinated actions.

I expect to see each and every one of our CMS staff members play a significant role in achieving our agency goals, and in helping other agencies achieve

The life of a claims adjuster is incredibly technical work, with much of the work spent closely checking details for accuracy, thinking through the ways in which claimants could qualify for benefits, and entering into a sort of strategic game with any who might want to try to “beat” the State workers compensation system for benefits that have not been rightfully earned.

Kevin Richey is the Southern Territory Workers Compensation Manager in the Risk Management Division of the CMS Bureau of Benefits. Richey was named CMS Employee of the Month for January 2020, in recognition of his reliable above-and-beyond approach to his work, including tens of millions of dollars in cost avoidance that he has helped capture in 2019 alone. He says he was still extremely surprised to be recognized say the least.

“I couldn’t believe it – what a thoughtful honor... First, this is all a team effort and my supervisor, Jack Engle, and I work together on strategies every day,” said Richey, a 17-year veteran of the State’s insurance claims work with more than 30 years in claims adjustment work overall. “Honestly, I am at a point where I had been considering retiring, and I really wasn’t sure what I was going to do as we got to the end of the year. But when I was informed of the recognition, I was truly shocked, and it re-energized me as I thought about it – made me feel as though people really are paying attention to the importance of the work we try to do. I decided then and there to stick around a bit longer.”

Richey’s supervisors were glad to hear of his change of heart. “Kevin is such a key to the good things we are able to do in Benefits – his experience is pretty much irreplaceable,” said Deputy Director of the Bureau of Benefits Teresa Flesch. “Kevin has been working to improve operations and reduce the cost of workers compensation especially since the claims portion has been outsourced to a private firm. He has implemented accountability procedures for the third-party claims firm that have helped improve our working relationships with the Attorney General’s office, and with the Workers Compensation Coordinators – it has ultimately resulted in higher quality service to all parties.”

Engle says simply, “Kevin adds so much to our experience and professional approach. He is very dedicated and just excels at the work.”

At the same time, Richey’s willingness to put in extra hours as needed became invaluable when the Bureau of Benefits suffered a tragic and unexpected loss with the September passing of longtime Workers Compensation staff member, Tom Brunner. “We were devastated by Tom’s loss, but Kevin stepped up willingly and worked through some difficult circumstances to maintain productivity in the Workers Compensation unit, on top of his other job duties,” Flesch explained. “He worked long hours to ensure that all email correspondence was handled in a timely way, make sure independent medical evaluation consultations went on without interruption, and to authorize settlements or approve surveillance as needed. His ability and experience have been invaluable during this very difficult time of loss – and he did all that without fanfare or even a second thought.”

In the meantime, Richey maintained production of two claims inventories he manages, conducted regular case reviews, delivered needed training to Workers Comp Coordinators as needed, and maintained his normal territory duties and workload, Flesch added.
Richey says the work is challenging and rewarding as he seeks a quick turnaround and payment of legitimately earned benefits, but he understands that all claims must be investigated to thwart any who might attempt to take advantage of the system. "Most people working for the State are honest and want only what they are entitled to, in terms of benefits," Richey says. "But there are always a few who think they can beat the system somehow. It's a chess game, and I love it – I know there must be something wrong with me. But I am very competitive, and I take a lot of pride in making sure all legitimate claims are paid as quickly as possible," while any unwarranted claims are denied.

"We tend to see some of the same names come up on that end, and I want them to know I'm still here, and paying attention," Richey said.

For the moment, Flesch is breathing a sigh of relief that Richey has decided to stay on staff. "Kevin's contributions, professional approach, and concept of teamwork are greatly appreciated," Flesch said. "He proves again and again what a true asset he is to the Bureau of Benefits. We're really lucky to have him."

The Department of Central Management Services’ Bureau of Personnel (BoP) is responsible for external agency personnel support as well as internal personnel for the Department. The Bureau is aligned to CMS’ Office of the Chief Administrative Officers (CAO), along with the Bureau of Labor Relations and the Office of Diversity and Inclusion. In their external capacity, the BoP is the primary compliance function for all State agencies and the keeper of all State employee records that fall under the jurisdiction of the Governor.

There are approximately 115 employees within CMS BoP and is divided into four operational divisions and an administrative office. The operational Divisions include, Examining and Counseling, Transactions, Technical Services, and Internal Personnel.

HAPPY NEW YEAR
The Illinois Department of Central Management Services (CMS) has recognized Katy L. Straub as the first recipient of the CMS Distinguished Deputy Award for her work since 2018 in establishing the Bureau of Administrative Hearings and ensuring consistent and accessible justice for Illinoisans seeking equal rights protection under the law. Straub has been Deputy Director for the CMS Bureau of Administrative Hearings since early 2018.

“All Illinoisans should be able to seek a needed measure of justice to protect their basic civil rights, but during the past decade or more, that access had become difficult for many to attain,” said CMS Acting Director Janel L. Forde, as she announced CMS’ first leadership award of its kind. “Katy Straub brings seemingly unlimited energy and skill to her work and has done a remarkable job of getting the Bureau of Administrative Hearings off the ground and into practice about as quickly as it could have been done. Just as important, Katy led an early cooperative effort with the Department of Human Rights (DHR) and the Human Rights Commission (HRC) to quickly meet the goal of the Governor’s Executive Order,” Number 2018-08, which required the elimination of a backlog of more than 2,000 claims cases that faced Human Rights officials little more than a year ago.

Despite the State’s best efforts to combat discrimination through the Human Rights Act during the early 2000s, thousands of Illinois cases have waited for years to be heard. The growing case backlog was the direct result of limited resources and flawed processes. It was recognized that without decisive action, the pending case-load before the Human Rights Commission could top 3,000 by FY 20.

Through Deputy Director Straub’s leadership, the Bureau of Administrative Hearings partnered at the end of 2018 with HRC, DHR, the CMS Office of Operational Excellence, and the Illinois Department of Innovation and Technology (DoIT) to advance a cooperative and mutually beneficial solution that enables more Illinoisans to access the assistance needed to ensure protection of their rights. Together, the coalition created a plan to fully eliminate the case backlog within 18 months through key process changes to eliminate bottlenecks and other system failures.

“With modest or marginal resources, many low-income residents cannot afford the legal fees and may not be aware of how to do litigation anyway,” Forde said. Those individuals have the right to turn to DHR and HRC to help them access justice, no matter their ability to pay. Owing to the partnerships Straub has helped create, Illinois citizens have increased access to the legal help they need, and the backlog was quickly whittled away – the reworked Human Rights hearing process successfully slashed the backlog by 44 percent in just the first six months. It took the coalition just 14 months to clear the backlog entirely, a full four months earlier than estimated.

Within the multi-agency partnership, Straub led the effort to streamline processes, improve service outcomes, and institute more rigid timeframes for each step in the filing and review process. She sought and received a temporary increase in dedicated staff assigned to the backlog, including attorneys and trained Administrative Law Judges. She oversaw the group’s long-range plan that included returning staff levels to normal once the backlog was eliminated and creating training opportunities for new and existing employees to ensure the new processes would be adhered to permanently.

“Together, we began an aggressive turnaround in just the first 60 days, and we’re striving to earn back the public’s trust and confidence to become a model for transforming government,” Straub explains. In those first 60 days in fact, some 500 cases out of 2,600 were resolved. Thanks to her continuous efforts and collaborative spirit, the overall human rights case backlog at the Commission decreased by 44 percent within six months, and its Request for Review backlog is down 40 percent as cases are being handled much more fluidly throughout the process.

Straub’s office is accomplishing this without sacrificing due process or the quality of the decision making on legal cases. “We are so proud of Katy, her staff, and the cooperating agencies involved,” said CMS Chief of Staff Anthony Pascente. “The work just to keep that collaboration together and ensure productivity was very difficult, and Katy has done a tremendous job of bringing people together and keeping the project right on track.”
In addition to her extensive work in restructuring and fixing the broken administrative hearings process affecting more than a dozen Illinois State agencies, Straub also has worked quietly to build partnerships and coalitions at county and municipal levels throughout Illinois to ensure that administrative work at the local levels adopts proven State procedures and follows a similar path toward efficiency and effectiveness, especially in the urban and suburban areas of Chicago and Cook County where well over half the Illinois population resides and many citizens seek similar opportunities for access and justice.

Prior to joining CMS, Straub served for four years at the Department of Financial and Professional Regulation, where she held roles as Assistant General Counsel, Prosecutor, and Associate General Counsel.
Straub graduated with a B.A. in Political Science and international Studies from the University of Wisconsin – Madison and earned her Juris Doctorate from DePaul University in Chicago. She lives in the city with her husband, and together they love running their dog along Chicago’s lakefront.
