

Cemetery Preservation Training Facts

Cemeteries are important reminders of our past and provide to us a sense of who we are. More importantly, cemeteries represent a physical legacy for future generations and must be preserved as a historical resource. Preservation starts with establishing goals and providing a good training program.

Goals of Cemetery Preservation Training:

- Understand how to develop a successful cemetery preservation plan
- Gain experience to identify and resolve issues
- Learn the proper skills to repair common problems
- Preserve the cemetery for future generations

Basic cemetery training involves elementary tasks such as documenting, washing, probing, and resetting certain types of markers.

Advanced cemetery training teaches the more complex techniques of resetting and repairing additional markers like pillars, obelisks, and multi-base monuments.

In both basic and advanced cemetery training it is important to be aware of what techniques to use and what techniques to avoid. Commonly-used but inappropriate and damaging techniques include setting stones in concrete, repairing broken markers with concrete instead of correct adhesive, and using adhesives, cleaning solutions and techniques that will further damage the marker.

A comprehensive training program provides modern information and the tools to be successful.
