

WHISTLE BLOWER PROTECTION

State employees are protected from any retaliation including reprimand, discharge, suspension or a change in working conditions for providing information to a supervisor, an investigator or public body concerning activity the employee reasonably believes is unlawful or assisting or testifying in a proceeding to enforce the Ethics Act.

State employees who suffer retaliation may receive reinstatement, two times the amount of back pay with interest, and attorney fees.

For more information, contact The Executive Ethics Commission at www.eec.state.il.us or your agency's Ethics Officer:

