It is strongly urged that you do not travel during the holidays.

If you do decide to travel, please consider the following recommendations to ensure your plans are safe for everyone:

Directors

Talk with your staff about travel and quarantining expectations if travel is planned.

Communicate any changes to policy you need to make due to COVID with your staff and parents.

Review the CDC guidelines for travel, including road, domestic, and international trips.

Use the CDC's Travel Planner to check for travel restrictions based on the State you plan to visit.

Find your local testing location and, if possible, make an appointment well ahead of your travel.

Considerations for Types of Travel

Spending time in security lines, airport terminals, and sitting in crowded flights can bring you in close contact with other people and frequently touched surfaces.

Making stops along the way for gas, food, or bathroom breaks can put you and your traveling companions in close contact with other people and frequently touched surfaces.

Traveling on trains for any length of time can involve being in crowded terminals and sitting or standing within 6 feet of others, which may increase your risk of getting COVID-19.
