

AgrAbility Unlimited

AgrAbility Unlimited was created to help farm families and farm workers who have physical limitations or disabilities resulting from an accident, birth defect, disease or illness. Since its inception, AgrAbility has provided substantial assistance to more than 950 individuals helping them remain active in their farm operations. The program has also provided technical information on ways of accommodating disabilities in order to perform farm work for thousands of Illinois farm residents.

The program is a cooperative effort between the University of Illinois Extension who is the lead organization, Illinois Assistive Technology Program and Community Health Partnership of Illinois. They are also linked to a network of supporting agencies that can provide a variety of help to meet the often diverse needs of a farm person with a disability.

AgrAbility also has more than 85 volunteers in many of Illinois' rural counties. These volunteers, called Community Ambassadors are the programs local point of contact, and keep the agricultural community informed of the services we offer.
