To whom it may concern,

As the Executive Director of the Affordable Assisted Living Coalition (AALC) and the former Bureau Chief of Long Term Care for the Illinois Department of Health and Family Services, I was involved in both the creation and rapid growth of the state's highly successful affordable assisted living model known as Supportive Living.

As one of the architects of the Illinois Medicaid waiver program, I relied on the financing, construction and operating expertise of Brian Cloch to create the parameters and guidelines that formed the foundation of this unique and highly successful affordable assisted living model.

For the last 20 years I have been proud to call Brian a colleague and a friend.

Brian stands for quality.

Brian stands for innovation.

Brian stands for excellence.

Brian has a passion for continuous improvement and he has made a significant impact on the senior housing industry as we know it today in the state of Illinois. Today, Illinois' Supportive Living program is the premier Medicaid waiver assisted living program in the country. Brian's company, Pathway Senior Living, remains a topnotch provider and leader in the affordable assisted living arena and is among the best at building and operating communities that offer well above and beyond the Supportive Living program's already high expectations for quality.

Brian consistently demonstrates his dedication and effectiveness in assuring the availability of affordable, high quality services in beautiful surroundings to seniors. It is precisely this level of quality, innovation and expertise that Brian will bring to Transitional Care of Arlington Heights.

The highest compliment I can, and regularly do, give Brian Cloch is that I would be happy to reside or have a loved one reside or recover in one of his facilities.

Sincerely,

Wayne Smallwood

Executive Director of the Affordable Senior Living Coalition

Re: Transitional Care of Arlington Heights Project

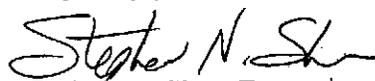

To whom it may concern:

We are writing to share our support of the Transitional Care of Arlington Heights project (the "Project"). The Project will provide top quality care and expertise, focusing its efforts on post-hospital care to high acuity patients who are increasingly forced to leave hospitals quicker than they might be prepared to do. The reality is some of these types of patients will go home with limited home care and have no family members available to provide the additional support they need. Many others who need this important level of care may be forced go outside the area for the services they require. The Project will help to address these situations.

In addition, the facility will offer a more holistic approach to treatment in a wellness center setting in comparison to its counterpart facilities. While there are other excellent acute rehabilitation facilities in the area, many are either fully occupied, only serve acute needs, or are outdated or restricted to serving special populations. Furthermore, not all employees of these other facilities are capable of handling the high acuity patients that will be served by the Project. The Project will cater to the patient who prefers to recover in a non-institutional/nursing home setting.

Finally, the Project will not only heal the residents, but help the recovering economy through the innovation it will bring to the community, while at the same time providing care for an under-served population in Arlington Heights and surrounding areas. I appeal to you and members of the Health Facilities and Services Review Board to lend your support to this new project.

Very truly yours,

Stephen N. Sher, Esq.

To Whom It May Concern;

I support the Transitional Care of Arlington Heights project.

Top Quality Care and Expertise

Transitional Care Center of Arlington Heights will provide post-hospital care to high acuity patients who are increasingly forced to leave hospitals "sicker and quicker" these days. Some go home with limited home care and have no family members available to provide the additional support they need. Others who need this important level of care may need to go outside the area for services.

Holistic Approach in a Wellness Center Setting

While there are other excellent acute rehabilitation facilities in the area, many are either fully occupied, only serve acute needs, are outdated or are restricted to serving special populations. Furthermore, not all are capable of handling the high acuity patient that will be served by Transitional Care Center of Arlington Heights or the patient who prefers to recover in a non-institutional/nursing home setting.

Healing our Residents and Helping our Economy

The development of Transitional Care Center of Arlington Heights will bring innovation and address a specific and under-served need in the Arlington Heights and surrounding communities while rounding out a complement of fine medical services.

I appeal to you and members of the Health Facilities and Services Review Board to lend your support to this new project.

Sincerely,
