ORDER

This matter coming before the Commission by a panel of three, Chair Rose Mary Bombela-Tobias and Commissioners Patricia Bakalis Yadgir and Duke Alden presiding, upon the Request for Review (“Request”) of Dustin Hoffman (“Petitioner”), of the Notice of Dismissal issued by the Illinois Department of Human Rights (“Respondent”) of Charge No. 2013CP0323 and the Commission having reviewed all pleadings filed in accordance with 56 Ill. Admin. Code, Ch. XI, Subpt. D, § 5300.400, and the Commission being fully advised upon the premises;

NOW, THEREFORE it is hereby ORDERED that the Respondent’s dismissal of the Petitioner’s charge for Lack of Substantial Evidence is SUSTAINED.

DISCUSSION

On August 2, 2012 the Petitioner filed a perfected charge of discrimination with the Respondent alleging that Lauren P. Silich d/b/a Chick-fila-A at Loyola In-Line (#02841) (“Operator”), as the operator of a place of public accommodation, directly and indirectly published communications which the Operator knew had the effect of denying Petitioner a place of public accommodation free from being unwelcome, objectionable, or unacceptable because of his sexual orientation, homosexual (Count A), marital status, single (Count B), and religion, Christian (Count C) in violation of Section 5-102(B) of the Illinois Human Rights Act.

The Commission finds that the Respondent properly dismissed the Petitioner’s charge for Lack of Substantial Evidence. If no substantial evidence of discrimination exists after the Respondent’s investigation of a charge, the charge must be dismissed. 775 ILCS 5/7A-102(D). Substantial evidence exists when the evidence is such that a reasonable mind would find the evidence sufficient to support a conclusion. In re Request for Review of John L. Schroeder, IHRC, Charge No. 1993CA2747, 1995 WL 793258, *2 (March 7, 1995). A finding of Lack of Substantial Evidence is proper in this case because the Petitioner failed to prove that the Operator, a franchise operator, is liable for the comments of Chick-fil-A’s owner, Dan Cathy.

The Petitioner asserts that the Operator is liable, under the Act, for Dan Cathy's July 16, 2012 statements because the Operator and Chick-fil-A are part of a joint venture. Petitioner, however, has failed to prove that Chick-fil-a and the Operator are a joint venture. "A joint venture is not a status created or imposed by law, but is a relationship voluntarily assumed and arising wholly ex contractu and the relationship is a matter of intent as between the parties. Richton v. Farina, 14 Ill. App. 3d 697, 704, 303 N.E.2d 218, 222-23 (5th Dist. 1973). "In evaluating that intent, courts look to the following elements: 1) an express or implied agreement to carry on an enterprise; 2) demonstration of intent to be joint venturers; 3) a community of interest, as reflected in the contribution of property, money, effort, skill, or knowledge; 4) a measure of joint control and management of the enterprise; 5) sharing of profits and losses. See Fitchie v. Yurko, 212 Ill.App.3d 216, 227, 156 Ill. Dec. 416, 424, 570 N.E.2d 892, 900 (1991). "In the absence of any of these elements, there is no joint venture." O'Brien v. Cacciatore, 227 Ill. App. 3d 836, 843, 169 Ill. Dec. 506, 511, 591 N.E.2d 1384, 1389 (1992).

Here, there is no demonstration of intent by the parties to form a joint venture. The franchise agreement between Chick-fil-A and the Operator explicitly states that the Operator is not in a joint venture with Chick-fil-A and makes clear that the Operator is independent:

Nothing herein shall be deemed to make the Operator an agent, partner, legal representative, joint venture, or employee with or of Chick-fil-A. In all public records in his relationship with all other persons or entities, and in any document, the Operator agrees to indicate clearly the independent ownership and operation by Operator of the Businesses.

The Petitioner asserts that despite the language of the franchise agreement, Chick-Fil-A and the Operator are a joint venture because Chick-fil-A exercises significant control over the franchise. The Petitioner references a 2007 Forbes magazine article and sections of the Operator Agreement to support this argument. This evidence is not persuasive, however, because none evidence that the Petitioner offers establishes that Chick-fil-A dictated to the Operator whether to provide service to customers of certain protected classes.

Dan Cathy's comments may have made the Petitioner feel unwelcome because of his sexual orientation, marital status, and religion. However, the Petitioner has failed to prove that the Operator is liable for Cathy's comments, under the Act, as part of a joint venture. Accordingly, the Commission finds that the Respondent's dismissal of Petitioner's charge was not in violation of the Act.

THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

1. The dismissal of the Petitioner's charge is hereby SUSTAINED.
2. This is a final Order. A final Order may be appealed to the Illinois Appellate Court by filing a Petition for Review, naming the Illinois Human Rights Commission, the Illinois Department of Human Rights, and Lauren P. Silich d/b/a Chick-fila-A at Loyola In-Line (#02841) as respondents, with the Clerk of the Illinois Appellate Court within 35 Days after the date of service of this order.
