OVERVIEW OF WORKERS' COMPENSATION

Workers' compensation laws were the first acts of social legislation passed in the United States. At the beginning of the 20th century, employers feared the assumption of liability for work injuries would destroy their businesses, while workers feared financial ruin from disabling injuries.

Before the advent of workers' compensation laws, an injured worker had to file a lawsuit against the employer, and prove the employer had failed to provide a safe workplace, to warn of danger, or to provide enough appropriate fellow workers. The employer then could present a defense that blamed the injured worker's contributory negligence, or attributed the injury to the negligence of a fellow servant, or argued that the employee assumed certain risks in accepting the job. The process was prolonged and uncertain, with large risks to both employee and employer. The employer's liability was unlimited.

The high injury and death rates throughout the Industrial Revolution and growing dissatisfaction with the common law gradually led to the enactment of employer liability acts. Employers were held more responsible for negligence, but employees still had to file lawsuits for damages. The first workers' compensation laws originated in Germany in 1884. Similar laws passed in other European countries.

In the U.S., workers' compensation laws were passed on a state-by-state basis. Most of the early laws covered only hazardous occupations and were found unconstitutional. Maryland passed the first act in 1902. Wisconsin's law of 1911 was the first that withstood legal challenges. Illinois also passed its first law in 1911, effective May 1, 1912.<sup>1</sup> It took until 1948 for all states to establish a law.

Workers' compensation laws balance competing interests: employees give up their right to sue in civil court and potentially win large awards in exchange for more modest but prompt compensation; employers give up their common law defenses in exchange for limits on their liabilities. Workers' compensation was established as a no-fault system. The theory behind the law is that the cost of work-related injuries or illnesses should be part of the cost of the product or service.

Originally, the courts administered the Act, but the volume overwhelmed the courts. On July 1, 1913, a three-member Industrial Board was created.<sup>2</sup> In 1917, a five-member Industrial Commission was created within the Illinois Department of Labor.<sup>3</sup> In 1957, the Commission separated from the Department of Labor and became a self-standing agency.<sup>4</sup> On January 1, 2005, the agency officially became the Illinois Workers' Compensation Commission.<sup>5</sup>

Almost every employee who is hired, injured, or whose employment is located in Illinois is protected by the Illinois Workers' Compensation Act. When an injury is sustained at work, the injury may be compensable according to the Act. Benefits may include an award for medical treatment, lost income, and permanent disability.

Illinois employers pay for workers' compensation benefits through insurance policies or by becoming self-insured. Cases are first heard by Arbitrators, whose decisions may be appealed to Commissioners. Cases may proceed on to the Circuit Court, Illinois Appellate Court, and, if leave is granted, the Illinois Supreme Court. Most claims, however, are settled between the parties prior to, or subsequent to, the initial arbitration.

STATISTICS

Each year in Illinois, approximately 200,000 work-related accidents occur. In most of these cases, the worker does not lose time from work. Fewer than 45,000 claims are filed with the Commission. The statistics in this section refer only to those cases that are filed with the Commission. The flowchart below illustrates the process.

DETAILED CASE INFORMATION

Cases are assigned to the hearing site nearest the site of the accident. If the accident occurred outside of Illinois, the case is assigned to the hearing site closest to the petitioner's home; if the petitioner lives outside of Illinois, the case is set at the site most convenient to the parties.

CASES CLOSED

As in other court systems, most cases filed at the Commission are settled. Please note that the figures below report only the final action on a case. If a case had more than one action (e.g., a case was decided at arbitration, then decided on the Commission level, then settled), only the final action is reported here.

An arbitration case is counted as closed if it was dismissed, settled, or if a decision was issued and no appeal was filed.<sup>6</sup>

INSURANCE FRAUD

The Illinois Department of Insurance investigates workers’ compensation fraud through its Fraud Unit, which is funded by the Commission. It is illegal for anyone—a worker, employer, insurance carrier, or medical provider—to intentionally make a false statement in order to obtain or deny workers’ compensation benefits, obtain workers’ compensation insurance at less than the proper rate, obtain approval to self-insure, etc. A “statement” includes any writing, notice, proof of injury, medical bill, record, report, or test result. More information is available at <http://insurance.illinois.gov/wcfu/>.

SELF-INSURANCE

Private employers may obtain approval to insure themselves for their workers’ compensation liabilities, or they may join a pool of other employers. The Commission evaluates individual self-insurers, while the Illinois Department of Insurance evaluates insurance pools. Public employers may self-insure without obtaining approval. Self-insured employers pay 25% of benefits.<sup>14</sup>
